YSA Sydney is a not-for-profit volunteer organisation who aim to promote science to the youth of Australia. We're reaching out to your school to see if our organisation is something you think your students would be interested in, and if it would be possible to have some of our flyers posted at your school.

YSA Sydney has three main opportunities - volunteering, personal development programs, and social events. Our personal development events would be highly beneficial to your students, as they include study days and skills workshops, as well as a Presentation and Science Show Training camp. At our study days, our older members, who are in university, act as mentors and help our younger members with their studies.

Furthermore, the skills workshops introduce or help students develop their skills in programs such as Microsoft Excel, Powerpoint and coding. We aim

Furthermore, the club members increase or help students develop their skills in programs such as Microbotics, Robotics, and Coding. We aim to hold these at least once every school term and they are usually held at universities or locations in Sydney's CBD.

YSA also offers a range of volunteering opportunities for our members. These include workshops and stalls at museums social events, fairs and universities, as well as science shows and demonstrations. They are held across the year, and allow presenters to interact with the local community and work on their science communication skills. We also have volunteering events at a larger scale, where we staff science camps which also allow them to work on their teamwork skills. Not to mention, all these are great ways to spruce up your students' CV!

You can find out more about the opportunities they provide at their website, Facebook group and Facebook page. If you are interested, please see Mrs Anton to express your interest. Thank you
